

President’s Message

Hello St. Louis IIA Chapter!

We’ve missed you these last several months without a newsletter. Don’t worry! We will be publishing these quarterly to keep you informed on all things chapter related. Our Programming Team has been hard at work putting on great programs to kickstart the chapter year. We started with the Cardinals Game in August which was led by having the GM of the St. Louis Cardinals, Michael Girsch, speak to the chapter. In August we also had Mr. Excel, Bill Jelen, give a tremendous two-hour webinar on tricks to Excel. In September we had our first in-person seminar of the year with Amanda Jo Erven speak about strategic planning. We were very excited to have our Student Night held back in person at Maryville. We had a great turnout and a major THANK YOU to the Academic Relations team for pulling that together. Next up, we welcomed the return of Scott London, our 2022 Multi-Track Keynote Speaker, to give us more insight into his insider trading story.

On November 10th, we will hold our next in-person seminar on “The Robots are Coming! The Robots are Coming! : How to Avoid Audit Extinction” with our speaker Michael Fucilli. We hope you can attend these exciting upcoming programs.

Committee Spotlight

For this chapter year, we will be spotlighting one of the committees and the work that our volunteers do to contribute to the success of our chapter. This quarter we would like to spotlight the Academic Relations committee.

The Academic Relations committee is responsible for increasing awareness of the internal audit profession to college students. There are four volunteers who reach out to colleges and universities in the greater St. Louis area and present to students about internal audit.

Volunteers on this committee also plan the annual Student Night Event, which was recently held on September 22nd at Maryville University. We were excited to see the students in person again and give them the opportunity to learn more about internal audit and network with other professionals.

Academic Relations is currently promoting their student scholarship which will give up to $5,000 in awards. If you know of any students who would be interested in applying for the scholarship, please email Chapter15@theiia.org for the application.

Certifications

Congratulations to our Newly Certified Member! Great Job!
